Seattle University Policy: University Communication to Students via Email

Upon enrolling at Seattle University, all students, including both matriculated and non-matriculated students, will be given a Seattle University email account. This email account will be a primary mechanism for official University communications to students, including registration and student account information, announcements of official University policies, reports required by federal consumer information requirements, and general announcements and information. As part of their responsibility to work with the University to manage their business and enrollment issues, students are expected to check their Seattle University email account regularly.
